From:	Justin Mondshine <Justin@pointstate.com>
To:	ehud barak <ehbarak1@gmail.com>
CC:
Date:	Mon, 8/11/2014 10:59:16 PM
Subject:	RE: (PTI) Burns to lead US delegation for talks with Iran in Geneva

OK

-----Original Message-----
From: ehud barak [mailto:ehbarak1@gmail.com]
Sent: Monday, August 11, 2014 1:24 PM
To: Justin Mondshine
Subject: Re: (PTI) Burns to lead US delegation for talks with Iran in Geneva

Justin
It is not dramatic. Let's discuss it tomorrow late afternoon NY time.
EN

Sent from my iPhone

> On Aug 11, 2014, at 18:38, Justin Mondshine wrote:
>
> Ehud,
>
> Curious for your take on the significance of this development. Does the creation of a bilateral negotiation track between the US and Iran change the odds of reaching a deal? If I recall correctly it was this channel that was instrumental in getting the November '13 interim agreement off the ground.
>
> Many thanks.
>
> Justin
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Justin Mondshine (POINTSTATE CAPITAL L) [mailto:jmond@bloomberg.net]
> Sent: Monday, August 11, 2014 11:34 AM
> Subject: (PTI) Burns to lead US delegation for talks with Iran in Geneva
>
> (PTI) Burns to lead US delegation for talks with Iran in Geneva
>
> +----------+
>
> Burns to lead US delegation for talks with Iran in Geneva
> 2014-08-07 02:33:35.484 GMT
>
>
> From Lalit K Jha
> Aug. 7 (PTI) -- Deputy Secretary of State William Burns will lead a powerful US delegation for talks on Iran's nuclear program to be held in Geneva this week.
> Burns, along with Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs Wendy Sherman and National Security Advisor to the Vice President Jacob J Sullivan will meet in Geneva with Iranian officials, an official statement said.

> The bilateral consultations will take place in the context of the P5+1 nuclear negotiations led by the European Union High Representative Cathy Ashton.
> Members of the P5+1 include the United States, France, Britain, China, Russia and Germany. PTI LKJ MRJ 08070759
>
> -0- Aug/07/2014 02:33 GMT